

ABSTRACT

An object of the present invention is to identify a novel single nucleotide polymorphism (SNP) associated with the onset and development of inflammatory diseases such as myocardial infarction. The present invention provides a method for judging inflammatory diseases which comprises detecting at least one gene polymorphism in the galectin-2 gene.